About Bulgur Wheat

Bulgur is a quick-cooking form of whole wheat that has been cleaned, parboiled, dried, ground into particles, and sifted into distinct sizes. Often confused with cracked wheat, bulgur differs in that it has been pre-cooked and is ready to eat with minimal cooking or, after soaking in water or broth, can be mixed with other ingredients without further cooking. Bulgur can also be used in recipes calling for converted rice and is a more nutritious, versatile product with a pleasant, nut-like flavor and an extended shelf-life.

Bulgur wheat has been a staple of the traditional Mediterranean Diet for thousands of years. It is now becoming an increasingly popular component in modern health food, plant based products and vegetarian diets. High in dietary fiber and carbohydrates, low in fat, rich in “B” vitamins, iron, phosphorous and manganese, Bulgur Wheat is listed as a suggested daily food item The Traditional Healthy Mediterranean Diet Pyramid. Bulgur Wheat is also the #1 grain in terms of nutritional scoring according to the Center for Science in the Public Interest (CSPI). CSPI also lists bulgur as the third highest grain item in the Grains and Pasta category in terms of fiber content and has more than double the fiber of couscous.

Bulgur Wheat is a Plant-Based Protein and complements the protein profile of legumes. Its B vitamins complement the folate in vegetables such as spinach, asparagus, broccoli, or brussel sprouts. In addition, many of Bulgur Wheat’s naturally occurring vitamins and minerals permeate the kernel during cooking, making bulgur more nutritious than other processed wheat products.

Specific Grind Sizes

#0 Extra Fine Bulgur Wheat – used as a coarse flour in breads, soups, and other products

#1 Fine Bulgur Wheat – makes a nutritious breakfast cereal and is perfect for breads and desserts. Traditionally used in tabouli salad.

#2 Medium Bulgur Wheat – is an all-purpose sized grain used in salads, stews, soups, multi-grain bakery goods, and especially in meatless burgers or chili.

#3 Coarse Bulgur Wheat – can be used in low-fat stuffing, casseroles, and as a meat extender. It is also used in pilafs, soups, salads, and artisan breads.

#4 Extra Coarse Bulgur Wheat – extra-large grind for use in soups, pilafs and specialty recipes.

#5 Half Cut Bulgur Wheat - extra-large grind for use in soups, pilafs and specialty recipes.

Whole Kernel Bulgur Wheat - key ingredient in hearty soups and to impart whole kernel goodness and texture to artisan breads.

Our History

Sunnyland Mills® was founded in 1935 under the name of Sunnyland Bulghur Company, Inc.® by Harry, George and Jivon Perch. Their original bulgur process utilized traditional methods from the Middle East. Almost immediately, they became known as the premium bulgur wheat manufacturer and, with growing demand for their high quality product, they soon perfected a continuous method of processing that was unique in the industry.

In 1977, George and Jivon sold the business to another pair of brothers, Carl and John Orlando. Carl and John modernized and improved the process many times and Carl's innovative ideas produced an even higher quality finished product. To reflect the company's growing product line, in 1993 the company name was officially changed to Sunnyland Mills®. Also in 1993 the company moved to a new, state-of-the-art facility that provided an even more efficient process and increased quality control in a technologically advanced environment.

When John and Carl retired, two of Carl's sons, Mike and Steve, purchased the business and continue operate the business with the values they learned from their predecessors.

Today, Sunnyland Mills® is the most modern bulgur wheat manufacturing facility in the world and continues the legacy of a family business committed to hard work and superior quality, whole grain, all natural products.
